■ Res.Asst. Dilşad TEKİN

■ European Association for Distance Teaching Universities (EADTU), a quality center that brings together leading open and distance education institutions in Europe under the same roof, held a conference at Telematica Internazionale Uninettuno University in Italy on October 19-21, 2016. Prof. Dr. Adnan Özcan (Vice Rector for Education and International Relations) and Asst. Prof. Dr. A. Nurhan Şakar (Faculty of Open Education, Group Coordinator for Quality Assurance) represented Anadolu University at the EADTU General Board Meeting and Rector's Meeting held during the conference.

In the ceremony on October 20, George Ubachs (General Director of EADTU) conferred the EADTU E-xcellence award to Anadolu University, which has now become one of E-xcellence Associates in Quality.

“EADTU is an acclaimed organization that represents open and distance education universities of Europe, and active national higher education consortiums in the field of distance education and e-learning. The Open Education System is entitled to receive the label of E-xcellence Associates in Quality on August 5, 2016, based on the report of a four-member review team from the Open University (OUUK) and the Spanish National University of Distance Education (UNED). I would like to extend my thanks to everyone that contributed to this process,” said Prof. Dr. Naci Gündoğan (Anadolu University Rector) about this achievement of the Open Education System. Keeping up with developments in the modern age and adopting the most up-to-date approaches to education, Anadolu University Open Education System deserved this award and proved once again to be one of the successful institutions offering open and distance education in Europe.
